Tradition with Innovation

Quin Sports opened its doors in 1961 and was started by Hugh Quin. It supplied clubs, schools and sportsmen with a wide range of equipment. During the first few decades of the company's history, it focused on supplying domestic and foreign coast fishing fleets and ocean going fishing vessels with fishing nets and ropes of all kinds. We also operated Quin Canvas Goods, winning Government and Army tenders for covers and tents. The development of sporting equipment for gymnasiums, sports complexes and stadiums has steadily increased with improvement in the venues and focus on individual's performances and their equipment.

State of the Art Manufacturing Techniques

Quin Sports are the suppliers of the worlds most advanced netting from knot-less to knotted. All nets are made from the highest UV rating for protection in the Australian climate. Assembly techniques have been gained from experience in the deep sea fishing industry. We invest in the latest machinery to maintain a high quality product at competitive prices.

Professional Installation

Quin's maintain a professional team of experts with many years of installation experience. We provide this service world wide and have worked as far as USA, Mexico, Singapore and United Arab Emirates.

Maintenance

Quin Sports and Nets understand the need for our equipment to last as long as possible. We run an in-house maintenance service on all equipment we sell, the advantage of this being many more years of usage as we can repair worn or damaged equipment before the cost of repair outweighs the cost of replacement.

Services

Planning – Quin's staff offer a free planning service to work closely with customers, architects and builders in the planning process to overcome design concerns and tailor our equipment to suit any application.
